COLORADO COLLEGE ALMA MATER

(O Colorado College Fair)
Words and music written in 1953 by Charles Hawley '54 and Professors Earl Juhas and Albert Seay

Song Leaders:

Anne Corinne Lokey '08, Room 46 Tara Moncure '08, Ellement

O Colorado College fair,
We sing our praise to you;
Eternal as the Rockies,
that form our western view;
Your loyal sons and daughters
will always grateful be;
The college dear to all our hearts
is our C.C.

O Colorado College fair,
Long may your fame be known;
May fortune smile upon you,
and honor be your own;
Our Alma Mater always,
Your loyal children we;
Together let us face the future,
Hail C.C.

AMERICA, THE BEAUTIFUL

(O Beautiful for Spacious Skies)
Music written by Samuel A. Ward (1847-1903)
Words written by Katherine Lee Bates (1859-1929)
(Selected Verses)

Song Leaders:

Anne Corinne Lokey '08, Room 46 Tara Moncure '08, Ellement

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain.
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

O beautiful for pilgrim feet
Whose stern impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness.
America! America!
God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law.

*THE PEOPLE STANDING

BILLY COLLINS

ONE OF THE MOST popular and delightful poets now writing in the English language, Billy Collins has published numerous books, including "Questions About Angels," "The Art of Drowning," "Picnic," "Lightning," "Sailing Alone Around the Room," "Nine Horses," and "The Trouble with Poetry." He has also edited two hugely successful anthologies: "Poetry 180: A Turning Back to Poetry" and "180 More: Extraordinary Poems for the Everyday." In 2006, he was guest editor of "Best American Poetry" and published a collection of his haiku, punningly titled "She Was Just Seventeen." His poems have appeared in virtually every major magazine, including The New Yorker, The Paris Review, and Poetry. He has won fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts, as well as being named a "Literary Lion" by the New York Public Library. In 2004, Collins was given the inaugural Mark Twain Award for Humorous Poetry from the Poetry Foundation of America. That last award seems especially appropriate, because Collins's humor can be mordant, and bids fair to make a permanent contribution to American letters.

Always a presence on the poetry circuit, Collins became a household name when, in 2001, he was named poet laureate of the United States, a position he held for two years. He subsequently served as New York state poet laureate from 2004 to 2006. His readings are now "events" packed with listeners from all walks of life, brought back to poetry by the promise of language that will be accessible without for a moment dumbing down the art. In fact, Collins's poetry is deceptively simple, as The New York Times has noted: "Luring his readers into the poem with humor, Mr. Collins leads them unwittingly into deeper, more serious places, a kind of journey from the familiar to quirky to unexpected territory, sometimes tender, often profound." It might be more accurate to say that Collins lets his readers be willing participants in a wry, angular view of the world. He is expert at skewering pretension wherever he finds it, yet his own poems can offer mixed feelings and unexpected complexities.

Collins arrived at his success after decades of teaching at Lehman College of the City University of New York, where he remains a professor of English. Currently he divides his time between Florida and New York, when not on the road proving to audiences of all kinds that important poetry can be fun to hear and to read.

— David Mason, Associate Professor of English

PATRICIA NELSON LIMERICK

FEW AMERICAN HISTORIANS would begin essays by quoting Donald Rumsfeld or Lewis Carroll, but few historians have the courage or rhetorical skill of Patricia Nelson Limerick. She has spent 30 years making people pay attention: academic historians must take the needs of their communities seriously and the public must consider the role of their own pasts in determining their futures. Born in 1950 in Banning, Calif., she was part of a generation of Californians who saw everything from above-ground nuclear testing, to the occupation of Alcatraz, to Jerry Brown in the governor's mansion. From that view, the American West offered stunning lessons in evil, hope, and reform.

After an undergraduate degree at U.C. Santa Cruz, and a Ph.D. in American studies at Yale, Professor Limerick began her career at Harvard in 1980. However, appropriate for a historian of the American West, she moved to the history department at the University of Colorado in 1984. Her 1987 book "Legacy of Conquest" changed the field of Western American history and made it suddenly relevant and contentious. A book of collected essays "Something in the Soil" created another eruption of contention in 2000. She's won every possible piece of academic acclaim, a MacArthur Fellowship, book awards, teaching awards, and has been one of only four women to serve as president of the Western History Association.

Limerick is proudest of her work as founder and director for the Center for the American West at CU Boulder, which does real work in the region in non-traditional ways. Its motto "Turning Hindsight into Foresight" challenges us to take the past seriously. Her larger goal is to create real conversation about the serious problems that face the region. But she insists that we do these things with grace and humor. Professor Limerick has engaged broad audiences to listen because she enjoys people, makes them laugh, and takes them very seriously. She recommends 12-step programs for those who view history with nostalgia and for those who get pompous about correcting the public view of history. She wrote in 2003, "I imagine affixing a Surgeon General's Warning to nostalgia, especially the kind that proposes that North America before 1492 was a natural and balanced paradise: 'Studies have shown that indiscriminate belief in a happier, simpler, better past can lead to resignation, despair, and entirely unnecessary squabbles with people who would otherwise be allies . . . If symptoms persist, consult a historian, who you will find to be much cheaper than a physician.'"

With her leadership, the Center has taken on projects crucial to the region's future, including the influential "Atlas of the New West" (1997), and a series of approachable and balanced reports on compelling Western issues, including "What Every Westerner Should Know About Energy" (2003) and "Cleaning Up Abandoned Mines" (2006). She brings important and unlikely groups of people into conversation, including liberal writers, conservative policy makers, cowboy poets, and environmental activists.

For her steadfast efforts at linking the academy and the public, and for her service to the Rocky Mountain region as a scholar, mentor, and public intellectual, we are privileged to nominate Patricia Limerick for the degree of doctor of humane letters, honoris causa.

— Anne Hyde, Professor of History

THE COLORADO COLLEGE

WHEN A FEW brave and visionary men determined in 1874 to found a college in the shadow of the Rocky Mountains, Colorado was not yet a state; in fact, it was little more than an inhospitable frontier. Nonetheless, on February 4, 1874, the Board of Trustees adopted a charter establishing "The Colorado College," and stating that the board's purpose was "to locate and maintain at Colorado Springs under Christian auspices an Institution of Learning on the college or university plan."

The college officially began with 12 students and two instructors meeting in a three-room frame building in the 200 block of North Tejon Street. Student assemblies and daily prayer meetings were held in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church next door.

But the institution's stability was far from assured. In fact, the college's first president, the Reverend James G. Dougherty, said, "The trustees looked around for someone who had wit enough to see the fading possibilities of a college and not wit enough to perceive the great hindrances to success."

In fact, the hindrances turned out to be considerable. When there was not enough money for the president's salary, Dougherty resigned, and within weeks, a large party of Ute Indians, en route from their mountain reservation to a buffalo hunt, were encamped on the four-block square that had been set aside for the campus.

The setback, however, was only temporary. In 1876, Edward Payson Tenney was offered the presidency of the "suspended" college, on the condition that he be responsible for raising the money to cover all operational and instructional expenses of the institution and not "place trustees of the college under any financial obligation." In his book on the history of the college, former Dean of Men J. Juan Reid writes that when Tenney received the invitation from the college to be its president, he retired "deep into the Cape Anne woodlands near his Massachusetts home to pray for divine guidance and specifically, that Henry Cutler, a well-to-do deacon of his church, might become the divine instrument for putting new life into Colorado College." Apparently, Tenney's prayers were answered because Cutler consulted with officials of the American College and Education Society, and he and four other Congregationalists from the Boston area agreed to finance the operational expenses of the college for one term on a trial basis.

In September 1876, the college reopened with 30 students and then embarked on a campaign to raise funds for the construction of a permanent college building.

General William Jackson Palmer, founder of Colorado Springs and a trustee of the college, spoke at the groundbreaking for the new building on July 4, 1877. "In breaking this ground," he said, "let us set apart and forever devote it and the structure which is to rest upon it to the purposes of education, in the most unsectarian way, to the discovery and inculcation of the truth."

From that day forward, the college had a permanent home. The building was dedicated at the college's first commencement on May 31, 1882. On that day, two graduates received their degrees, Parker Halleck and Fredrick Tuckerman, and they were both required to give orations to the assembled gathering. After they had finished speaking about civil service reform and "A Popular View of Philosophy," President Tenney delivered a commencement address that lasted an hour and fifteen minutes.

Halcyon days followed. On April 12, 1883, in the first intercollegiate football game played west of the Mississippi, the college team defeated the team from the University of Denver 12-0. Following the game, Denver University accused the college of using "ringers," and the college admitted that they had played five of the best players of the Crowell Hose Company, one of the local volunteer fire departments.

In the years that followed, the college continued to expand, and buildings of peachblow sandstone grew up and formed the quadrangle. The same clear vision that went into creating the college was evident again when it became necessary to preserve the campus. William F. Slocum, the college's third president, refused to allow a local streetcar company to run its cars through the campus and insisted that the new science building be erected at the end of Tejon Street. When the City Council sided with Slocum, the owner of the streetcar company diverted what is said to have been "a substantial sum of money," once intended for the college, to other far less worthy purposes.

The more than 1,930 students currently enrolled at Colorado College are taught by 168 distinguished faculty members. The college's commitment to liberal arts and sciences education has remained steadfast since its founding in 1874, enhanced by a distinctive curriculum organization called the Block Plan. The college's twelfth president, Richard F. Celeste, presides over today's ceremonies.

General Palmer's vision of a school dedicated to "the discovery and inculcation of the truth" is in good hands.

A NOTE ON ACADEMIC COSTUME

THE ACADEMIC COSTUME worn by faculty gives commencement much of its traditional air of pageantry. With its long, flowing gown and brightly colored hood, the costume would seem to have been designed for just this purpose. In fact, academic costume was designed in the Middle Ages, when all students were clerics, with much more practical considerations in mind. The gown and its attached hood helped to keep off the chill in the unheated buildings of the day. Even the bright linings of the hood were chosen with the purpose of identifying the religious order to which the student belonged.

To the knowledgeable observer, American academic costume today can be just as informative about its wearer as it was in the Middle Ages. Based on the intercollegiate code established in 1895, each aspect of the costume, such as gown color, mortarboard tassel, and sleeve shape, indicates something about its wearer and the highest degree received.

The gown is usually black, although some universities have adopted a brighter color scheme. The color of the tassel can indicate the highest degree the wearer has earned; a doctor's cap, for instance, frequently bears a tassel of gold. The sleeves are even more informative, with long pointed sleeves indicating the holder of a bachelor's degree; oblong sleeves, a master's degree; and bell-shaped sleeves, a doctor or specialist. The doctor can be distinguished from the specialist by the three bars that adorn the sleeves of the gown.

With its brightly colored lining, the hood is the outstanding feature of the academic costume. The color of the lining indicates the college or university that has granted the degree — Colorado College hoods, for instance, are lined in gold. Each hood bears a border whose color is determined by the degree the wearer has earned. So, a doctor of philosophy's hood will always have a border of blue, regardless of the field studied.

Among the institutional colors that may be seen at today's commencement are the following: University of Alaska, gold, violet chevron; Arizona State University, maroon, gold chevron; Bryn Mawr College, gold, white chevron; University of California, gold, blue chevron; University of Chicago, maroon; University of Colorado, gold, silver gray chevron; Columbia University, light blue, white chevron; University of Connecticut, royal blue and white; Cornell University, red, two white chevrons; Dartmouth College, Dartmouth green; Duke University, royal blue and white; Harvard University, crimson; University of Illinois, dark blue, two orange chevrons; Indiana University, crimson, white chevron; Johns Hopkins University, dark blue, gold chevron; University of Kansas, red, blue chevron; University of London, maroon, gold chevron; University of Maryland, black, gold chevron; University of Michigan, maize, azure blue chevron; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, bright red, silver gray chevron; Northwestern University, purple, gold chevron; University of Notre Dame, gold, royal blue chevron; University of Oregon, gold, green chevron; University of Pennsylvania, cardinal, blue chevron; Princeton University, orange, black chevron; University of Rochester, gold and blue; Stanford University, cardinal; University of Toronto, scarlet, two white cords; University of Virginia, blue, orange chevron; University of Wisconsin, bright red; Yale University, dark blue.
